Japanese Not Wanted In Canada Says Chillingworth

SAVED ONLY $10,000 OUT OF $25,000

"I got ten thousand dollars out of the whole thing," said Chas. F. Chillingworth, who returned in the Nevada this morning from his tour of the mainland. He is looking very well and is glad to be back once more to his native land. While on the mainland he looked into many business enterprises. Before he started back he was called up to Vancouver to look into the Kumeric trouble. On his arrival there he found that his friend Maruyama was perfectly helpless in the management of the Kumeric emigrants.

"Practically all the emigrants have been scattered in the inland districts, at the instigation, of course, of the anti-Japanese whites there," said Chillingworth. "The money which was advanced to the emigrants by the local hotelkeepers could not be recovered. There is a strong feeling against the emigration of Japanese in Canada. When I arrived at Vancouver after I got through with my business, I found that Maruyama had not collected any money from the Japanese. In fact, he could not, as he was interfered with by the anti-Japanese. I spent about two days there in trying to make a satisfactory arrangement about the money which Maruyama utterly failed to collect. I gave him written instructions to guide him in the performance of his duties as agent of the emigrants. When they arrived there the anti-Japanese were at the wharf ready to stone the emigrants. They lost no time in sending the Japanese arrivals to the inland districts, where Maruyama could not reach them.

"The show money was handed to the Japanese consul, which made it all the more difficult to collect it. After two days of hard work I succeeded in getting ten thousand dollars in Canadian money. I had the necessary papers all drawn up and was ready to bring suit for it. When I got this whole amount I left Vancouver rightaway and came down to get the first steamer for Honolulu. I left at night time. It cost me about $300 to get the money exchanged into United States money. It was very fortunate that I got that much when I arrived at my destination, and before leaving for Honolulu I received a cable from Maruyama saying that the Vancouver anti-Japanese whites were looking for me. I was too quick for them. Had Maruyama only followed my instruction he could have collected all the money from the emigrants before they were scattered away in the country. I told him to collect the money immediately upon their arrival but he did not do so. There is no use of talking. The Japanese are not wanted in Canada and the troubles which are liable to break out at any time will have unpleasant results."

CITY IMPRESSED BY NAVAL PARADE

Martial Spectacle Made A Fine Lesson In Patriotism

MILITARY MEN MAKE FAVORABLE COMMENT

GREAT CROWDS OF ALL NATIONALITIES, INCLUDING SCHOOL CHILDREN, ENJOY THE NAVAL SHOW.

"That shows what Uncle Sam would be able to do in time of trouble."

This expression was heard time and time again on the streets this morning as the sailors and marines from the visiting cruiser fleet paraded through them. They looked formidable those long files of young, husky men with their rifles and sidearms, while the business-like appearance of the field pieces which were trundled along by sailors, added considerable to the warlike look of the procession. It swelled the hearts of the patriotic mainlander to hear again the familiar strains of martial music and the rhythm of the step of the long columns, and the newly adopted alien races had the feeling driven home that in the United States they had found an adopted parent who is well able to look after them and their interests.

Long before the appointed hour there were fully 4000 people gathered near the Palace square to witness the naval parade. Business was partly suspended and school children brought by the hundreds in special cars to see it. Captain C. Thomas, commander of the cruiser Maryland, was in supreme command of the parade and was ably assisted by his officers. When the men were moving in front of the Opera House an interested Japanese spectator was coming from makai sidewalk towards the track. He was accompanied by a boy about five years old. When he reached the track he found that he could not proceed on mauka sidewalk on account of the sailors, who were marching up. Instead of waiting the Japanese and his boy butted right in. One of the junior officers saw this cross-cut and ordered the Japanese back with his sword. The Japanese was greatly excited and asked the officers what he meant by it. The officer had no time to stop and talk to the Japanese, but pressed him back with the back of his sword. The Japanese was very indignant and said that he would lodge a complaint with the Japanese consul.

"The officer was all right," said the spectators who saw the incident. Colonel Fisher, the Territorial auditor, was there and saw what happened. Headed by Captain C. Thomas and his aids the United States naval defenders marched through the streets with their four bands playing appropriately.

JUDGE SUMMONED TO SERVE AS JUROR

Mrs. E. M. Nakulua, Commissioner of Public Ways and Water Rights, was somewhat amused and a good deal irritated this morning at receiving a summons, directed to E. M. Nakulua, to serve as a juror in Judge Whitney's court. Being herself a judge, Mrs. Nakulua did not think it exactly fitting and proper that she should act also as juror.

The mistake arises probably through the fact that the Commissioner signs not public documents, etc., simply E. M. Nakulua, and some new clerk seems to have taken the name without a thought as to E. M. Nakulua being a woman—or did he know? Mrs. Nakulua would like to know.

Our Girls At Capitol, California

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 15. Bulletin, Honolulu. The Bulletin party was given a great entertainment at the State Fair that is being held here. All well.

WEATHERED.

This cablegram, sent from Sacramento on Sunday afternoon, shows that the Hawaii girls have completed their sight-seeing tour of San Francisco and reached Sacramento, the capital of California, and were especially entertained by the management of the California State Fair. This is one of the events of the year in California and it is just possible that the party prolonged their stay in Sacramento a day. The itinerary planned had one day for this State Capitol, and it is probable the young ladies are now on their way to Los Angeles, where a jolly round of sight-seeing has been planned by the Chamber of Commerce Secretary and Mr. Childs, who represents Hawaii's Promotion Committee.

LAUNDRY CO. AND MAGOON GET SET BACK

The Supreme Court in an opinion handed down this morning reversed the decree of the lower court in the matter of the Troy Laundry Machinery Co., Ltd., versus the Sanitary Steam Laundry Co., Ltd. and J. Alfred Magoon, overruled the demurrer and allowed the defendants ten days within which to answer. The complaint alleged that the defendant company, while insolvent and owing a large amount to the plaintiff, had transferred all its property, valued at $90,000, to Magoon for an inadequate sum, viz., a mortgage for $30,000, and that at this time the company owed Magoon $15,000. The conveyance was never recorded and was kept secret. The syllabus says:

INSULTED FLAG

Considerable indignation is being shown at the action of a prominent Japanese contractor, who does considerable work for the United States government on drying contracts, who today, presumably as a counter demonstration to the naval parade, hoisted the American flag half-mast and upped down at his place at Punahou near the Spreckels place.

An opinion was handed down by the Supreme Court this morning in the matter of the Territory versus the Kapolani Estate and the McBryde Estate, the decision being adverse to the Territory.

ROSENBERG BOUND OVER FOR TRIAL

Witness Testifies To Selling Him Stolen Brass Fittings

DECLARE DEFENDANT KNEW HOW STUFF WAS OBTAINED

BOY SAYS HE ROBBED GOVERNMENT WAREHOUSE TWICE AND CARRIED SPOILS TO BOTTLE HOUSE MAN.

Jacob Rosenberg was this morning bound over by Commissioner George A. Davis to answer before the Federal District Court to the charge of receiving property stolen from the United States.

Davis exhibited great reluctance to hold the prisoner for trial, stating several times that he thought the case presented by the United States District Attorney was extremely weak, and if it had not been for the fact that A. G. M. Robertson, attorney for the defendant, allowed certain inadmissible evidence to go in unobjected to, he did not think that the evidence would warrant his holding Rosenberg for trial.

The evidence, however, appeared very conclusive. The principal witness was David Kueio, one of the gang of boys who broke into the warehouse, stole brass fittings, etc., and, as is charged, sold them to Rosenberg.

The boy was put on the stand by the prosecution and told what had every appearance of being a straight story. He fully admitted his own guilt and described how he and the other boys burglarized the warehouse, carried away the brass and sold it to Rosenberg. He said that they had been in the habit for more than a year of selling stuff to the junk dealer, and that what they sold him was often stolen, a fact of which Rosenberg was fully aware. Rosenberg had warned them, the boy said, to tell him when the stuff they offered for sale had been stolen, so he could hide it.

The boy, a rather pleasant appearing Hawaiian of 16, said that he and a companion named Ben Duncan first got into the warehouse by breaking a window with a stick and crawling in through the hole. There they took brass pipes, faucets, copper, etc., and went out with it through another window. They took it right down to (Continued on Page 4.)
